

A Congressman from New York threw down a gauntlet to the Republicans today. He said if they all thought "government health care was so bad" then they should have the courage of their convictions. He proposed an amendment to the health care bill to do away with Medicare.

I know you'll be shocked to read this but -- not a single Republican was in favor of killing Medicare.

Guess Medicare and military health care aren't soooo bad. My ex-husband was an army brat, and he and his family always spoke highly of the care they got from the military.
