

Here is the best press release ever in the history of the world --

&quot; &nbsp; We completely understand the public&rsquo;s concern about futuristic robots feeding on the human population, but that is not our mission,&rdquo; &nbsp;

Let's see, they are developing predator drones that will make their own decisions about when to shoot. Now we've got robots that will feed on biomass to fuel themselves.

What could possibly go wrong?

I haven't had time to write this post, and I had also agreed to non-disclosure about this meeting, but now it's gone public so I'm going to write up my experiences at
