

Here is an interesting idea that I think has value, and I can't see a downside. I moved my money years ago from a local NM bank to the B of A because I could use the same checking account in CA or in NM.

But I am well and truly pissed with these people, and I have a pretty hefty savings account. I'm thinking I just might want to move a chunk of this money over to a local bank.

You can check out the video here and find local, well rated banks in your area.
