

Beginning with the terrible loss of Ted Kennedy's seat in Mass., followed by more details about the torture of prisoners in American custody -- this time at Guantanamo and this time resulting in death, followed with the Dems rolling over and playing dead because they have lost one seat so now they have to become Republican lite, the general consensus that health care reform is dead --

I'm driving around Santa Fe running errands when I see the bumper sticker on the van in front of me. It reads:

Slime + Time = Me? I don't think so!

And of course the obligatory Christian fish. So you can really announce to the world that you are dumber than a sack of hammers.

I guess we really get the government we deserve.